MY BACKGROUND

You may be asking yourself how a psychology graduate turned yoga instructor found her way into the world of computer science? I've always had a very inquisitive mind and find joy in solving problems, it was only a matter of time before I found coding. I've just completed a 400 hour frontend bootcamp through Grand Circus in 10 weeks where I learned the technical skills required to create user friendly applications. My background in psychology and as a yoga professional give me a unique understanding of users and how to turn a client's vision into reality with the flexibility to make adjustments on the spot. This drives me to invent highly intuitive and functional applications that create a memorable user experience.

WORK EXPERIENCE

Chalfonte Foundation

Program Director | July 2019 - July 2020

- Designed and executed the largest summer camp to date - coordinating staff, organizing activities, setting timetables, and logistics.
- Planned, organized, and prepared for events - local outings, day trips, and fundraising events.
- Managed and diffused conflict when it arose amongst youth - from talking one on one to facilitating groups to resolve conflict including taking responsibility for actions and developing a plan for the future when appropriate.
- Managed staff - trained 3 prior campers to be camp counselors which led to growth in their overall confidence.

Independent Contractor - In person and online

Yoga and Meditation Instructor | January 2018 - present

- Private sessions - identify students goals and desired outcome, create bespoke classes, adjust as needed ensuring student is moving in the direction of their goals.
- Public classes (up to 50 students) - plan and prepare flow, create a welcoming environment, read the room and adjust previously planned class for students ability and need (i.e. simplifying, picking up the pace, explaining in different terms, etc.).
